The City of Charleston Department of Planning, Preservation, and Sustainability
Release's Online Comprehensive Plan Survey

Charleston, SC. – The City of Charleston Department of Planning, Preservation, and Sustainability has developed an online survey for residents regarding the formulation of the City of Charleston comprehensive plan update. In conjunction with public meetings held last week and this week, the on-line survey is another way of allowing the public to comment on the City's current planning efforts and future direction. The survey, which is less than 30 questions, is available online at:

<http://www.charlestoncity.info/comp-survey>

The survey should take approximately 5-10 minutes to complete and will be available online from now through the end of October. It will also be available for completion at the Department of Planning, Preservation, and Sustainability's remaining public meetings for community input.
